Organized by

In a special partnership with

The 4th International INSECTA 2018 Conference will be in Gießen on September 5-7, 2018.

The conference aims to give an overview of the state-of-the-art of insect technology and the prospects. Technological, political and ethical aspects are discussed.

For scientists, representatives of related industries, policy makers, media and consumers the 4th INSECTA 2018 Conference will once again provide ample opportunities for a lively exchange on insects as food, feed and non-food.

It is joint-organized by Pilot Pflanzenöltechnologie Magdeburg e.V. (PPM) and Leibniz Institute for Agricultural Engineering and Bioeconomy (ATB) and held in Gießen, Germany. This year the LOEWE-Center and the Justus Liebig University Gießen are special partners. The topic Insect Biotechnology will get special attention.

This conference will offer an opportunity to present your business on an international platform:

- Introduce your brand to players of the future protein market
- Demonstrate your position as a thought leader in this rapidly evolving space
- Meet & influence decision-makers

WHO YOU WILL MEET

Innovators and participating experts make this event an ideal platform for communication. INSECTA 2018 gives you access to unique players:

- Thought leaders of the Food, Feed and Non-Food sector
- Managers executive level
- Leading scientists in food technology and insect biotechnology
